

Tyrant Man Means Woman Shall Cook

Uncle Sam and Asphalt Trust Brought Into Plot to Keep Her Busy at the Kitchen Range.

What a fine excuse. Tell the reason why Cooks are screaming "back," and letting scorch the pie.

Turning out the biscuits. Why the near cook's mood?

Downtown this has put a delirium in her nose.

The truth is out. Tyrant Man has been backed into a corner and made to admit. He tried to raise a dust to cover the real reason. He scattered the attacks to make them seem like independent sorties. He called in the power and patronage of the United States Government. Then he went higher and enlisted the power of the trusts. But the truth at the bottom of the well came up in the bucket.

It's cooks. Or rather scarcity of cooks. And that scarcity has pushed man into a corner and to desperate measures. They have given various reasons, but the translation is always the same—"Cooks wanted." Maybe you heard about the school for brides. Of course, if you are a man you read between the lines and knew it was a school for cooks. And now the Asphalt Trust and the Chicago Post-Office have come out almost simultaneously barring women as employees.

Trust Bars Them. The Asphalt Trust officials who announced that girls will be let out of the ranks after July 1 offer the excuse that girls can't keep a range of a pound a smoother over the stove. The post-office man gives the transparent reason that women cannot handle heavy mail sacks and climb ladders. And hence are unsuitable for that matter, neither possibly could the complainant, Assistant Postmaster Hubbard, who has been the "real" unemployed postmaster of Chicago for thirty-five years because he learned a campaign song just previous to fighting in the rebellion. After giving this excuse he got down to the meat.

Just a Few Pretenses. And there you have it. They could have saved all the trouble by just stating this, and not giving these pretenses. They got married and depleted the force.

"They are not ambitious." "Cannot handle heavy mail sacks and climb ladders." "Too sensitive when corrected." "Unsuitable for night work."

"They don't mean a word of it. Of course not. It is merely part of the plot to preserve the cooks from taking Cook's tours to office jobs. And the Asphalt Trust man when he added:

"Girls as girls are all right. What would man be without them?"

And the school for cooks—er—brides—these are all parts of the same deep, widespread plot to keep the girls from competing off the range (sure, kitchen range, you win), and going into offices.

where they can pry men off their jobs by underbidding them in the market. When Uncle Sam took a hand in the game of sending women back to the kitchen it was because he thought she could rise better by ruling the kitchen. Her cook was tough in the post-office line. The department and stamped its disapproval on her ambition and sent it to the dead-letter office. She didn't even class with the third class mail any more. The only place in the post-office for the ex-cook and housemaid was the "Domestic" class. They gave girls the sack because the girls couldn't handle it.

Mustn't Paint Houses. And as for the Asphalt Trust, it may be that inferior cooks will eventually turn out such hard biscuits that they will be used as paving material, to the detriment of the trust's business. Trusts are far sighted. They want to hark back to the old time.

Even the strong arm of the law has been enlisted. In Chicago last week a young woman attracted a few thousand rubberneckers by sitting up on a scaffold fifty feet up and painting a sign. A constable arrested her and the magistrate let her go only on her promise that she would confine her painting to her cheeks in the future.

And why, asks the tired New Yorker who has infected the agencies looking for a household jewel, do so many of these plots to manufacture cooks emanate from Chicago?

Possibly because Chicago is in Cook County.

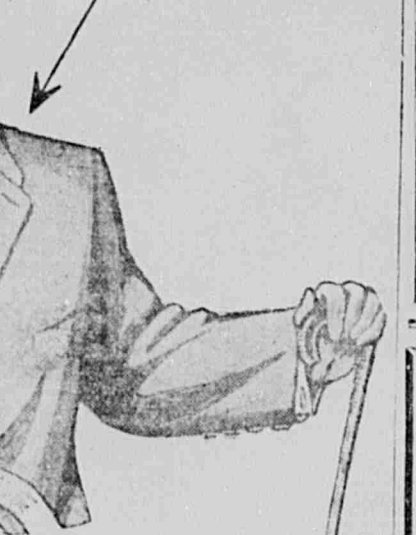

President Austin Fox, of the City Club, today made public a letter written by him in answer to the attack made by former Borough President Swanstrom, of Brooklyn, on Secretary Lawrence Veiller, of the club, for calling a conference in the club-rooms to discuss the interbridge loops. Mr. Fox tells Mr. Swanstrom that Veiller's action was in accordance with the directions of the Board of Directors, and he gives his opinion that the City Club's most important act of 1905 was the successful opposition of the Delancey street loop.

"This," said Mr. Fox, was not a club affair, but the result of a conference of representative east side city bodies."

Mr. Fox states that Secretary Veiller acted only on orders from the trustees, and said Mr. Swanstrom to withdraw his attack on the secretary. He ends by stating that the City Club will continue to oppose any further elevated railroad structures in New York.

The Extraordinary Purchasing Power of Fifteen Dollars---Just Now!

Just now is the psychological moment for you. Here are suits at the right price, in the right style, of the right fabrics, offered just at the right time. It is to our credit that we have been able to so control circumstances as to make this offering possible.

It is to your benefit to seize the opportunity while it is here to seize.

If you are intimate with the present order of things in the woollen market—the radical uprise of prices—you will be brought to a higher appreciation of these suits. By a bold purchase of thousands of yards of woollens some two months ago we circumvented the rise of prices.

Let it be known that for contemporary suits $20 is demanded. We ask only $15.

Some details of the suits involved:

Radical three-button single-breasted sack suits, the coats of which are cut extremely long, having long lapels, shaped backs, with deep side vents, centre vents or no vents. Double-breasted models as well.

Of velvet finished cassimeres of very light gray plaids and medium gray tones, shadow herring-bones, diamond weaves, club checks and indefinite patterns, as well as blue and black cerises, dark chevrons and black blithes.

Women's Blouse Waists and Shirts

There are several reasons why we do the largest business in shirt waists that is done in New York besides the reason that you can get better waists for the money here than you can anywhere else in town.

One of those other reasons is that you get a wider, fuller choice here. Another is that we take extreme care to get the new ideas first and to show most of them. Another is that we never gain our low prices by the common trick of "skimping" the waist in size. Our "36," for example, is built for a "36" all over. We don't give a full bust-measure and pinch the shoulders.

Note These Special Saturday Offers: White Lawn Waists: linen finished; excellent quality; four styles from which to choose; front designed with cluster of French tucks on either side of front plait; patch pocket; stiff collar and cuffs, or three-quarter sleeves and soft, turnover cuffs and detachable, soft, turnover collar. Also same style designed with a plain shirt front and patch pocket; also soft or stiff collars and cuffs; long or three-quarter sleeves. $1.50

White Linen Shirts, of pure white linen; handsomely tailored; both long and short sleeve effects; these waists are sold by exclusive shops from $3.75 to $5.75; to-morrow $4.50, $3.50 & $2.95

Cool and Handsome Summer Suits for Youths at $6.50

Two-piece suits—coats and trousers; it would be difficult to get the young men to wear the vest, if there were any.

Just the right kind of materials—the lightweight chevrons and worsteds in the pale grays that the best-dressed men prefer.

No suits for men, even at double this price, were ever better made. Coats have hair-cloth filling to preserve shape, and collars are hand-made. The suits will fit as smoothly and trimly as if they were moulded to the wearer by a first-class custom tailor.

Trousers have belt loops and turn-up bottoms. There isn't another store in New York that would sell these suits for less than $2 more than our price. $6.50

Sizes 30 to 36 breast measure for ages 14 to 20 years. (Siegel Cooper Store, Second Floor, Rear.)

That headline will be enough to bring to this big, bright shoe store to-morrow every man who needs shoes and who has ever bought shoes here. For those men know the kind of shoes we sell, and know that what we say about them can be trusted. For the benefit of other men who don't know these things let us explain:

That this is a clean-up of our own stock. That the shoes are principally tans, which is a point in their favor at this time, but are also principally high shoes, which is, at this time, a point against them, in a commercial sense.

That the $3.50 value is an average figure: some of these shoes are $2.50 grades (none less than that) and some are samples of a $5 line. The majority, however, are our own $3.50 shoes—some of them "Foot Mould" shoes.

Besides tans, there are patent leather and kidskin shoes, which will probably go first, but which are no better values and certainly no better styles than the others.

Every man who buys a pair to-morrow is putting $1.75 in his pocket and getting $1.75 of good foot wear besides.

Choice of any pair while they last. $1.75 (Siegel Cooper Store, Second Floor, Rear.)
